

engaged in the war or not. It must not be forgotten that in the world war the United States lost $5,585 tons of merchant shipping from a comparatively small merchant fleet before it even took part in the hostilities. Afterwards it lost 384,290 tons.

Even that large figure looks small beside the world loss of 12,550,000 tons gross. The bigger submarines today, with a far larger cruising radius and much more offensive power than had the German U boats in 1917 and 1918, are capable of destroying even more than 15,000,000 tons of noncombatant merchant shipping in another war.

How Undersea Boats Lie.
It is worth while at this point to tabulate the strength of the world's leading navies in submarines built and to be built. The position is this:

Submarine built:
Great Britain	58
United States	120
Japan	53
France	45
Italy	42
Submarine projected:
Great Britain	10
United States	8
Japan	28
France	28
Italy	28

Those figures are not my guesswork. They are the official British admiralty figures, issued to the world a year ago. The position today is practically the same except that a few more submarines have been projected in a certain country.

U. S. Boats Nearly All Small.
Now, the position of the United States, according to that table, would appear extremely favorable. It has more than twice as many submarines built as any other country. But these statistics require other statistics to show them in their true light.

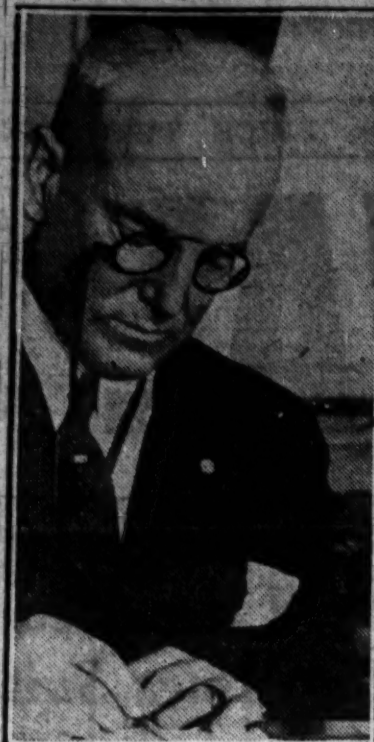

What are the facts about those 120 United States submarines? There are nineteen of them of about 450 tons displacement. There are forty-six of them between 450 and 550 tons, and there are forty-four of more than 550 tons and less than 1,000 tons.

The latest European submarines range from 225 tons to 2,000 tons, and the largest American submarines, the V type, are 2,164 tons. Therefore, examination of the 120 American submarines is less formidable than it looks. The U. S. submarine fleet is mainly composed of craft whose utility is severely limited, and whose effective offensive power in conditions of modern warfare may politely but emphatically be questioned.

World Ignorance of Menace.
The world at large is almost ludicrously ignorant of the growth of the submarine menace to merchant shipping in the last ten years. When the allied and associated powers, at the close of the world war, failed to exact bitter and exemplary punishment of the German U boat commanders and those who inspired the U boat campaign, they failed to make the world safe for seafarers. They failed to brand the submarine as a weapon for murder. And as a result the naval architects have daily proceeded to improve that weapon of murder.

I am not here considering the submarines as a legitimate weapon of war for use against other men of war. That is a controversial subject on which only those with confidential information can really argue. I am directing the attention of the American public

TALKS TODAY

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of naval aviation, who was for years in command of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, arrived yesterday and will address the Citizens Foundation group today at a Union League club luncheon.

"I am a firm advocate of naval disarmament," the admiral said, "providing that you can get all the powers to agree to a fair and impartial plan." He was reluctant to discuss details of the Coolidge proposal for further disarmament.

The admiral is enthusiastic over plans for the growth of naval aviation, which he deems one of the most important branches of national defense. He expressed satisfaction at the authorization for another rigid airship, his pet project, by congress.

to the fact that the bigger it makes its mercantile marine, the bigger and faster the targets it is offering to future enemies.

For make no mistake about it, there is going to be submarine warfare against noncombatant merchantmen again in the future. And it will be the task of the American navy to defend the American merchantmen in every sea in which they ply, against the ravages of underwater warfare.

The French naval general staff makes no bones about that subject. It is discussed in all its bearings quite openly at the naval superior school and at the staff college. There have been denials, official and semi-official, but they are incredible in face of proven facts. The statements have been made not by irresponsible hotheads but by sober professors pursuing a definite course of instruction.

The Italian general staff has also developed theoretic plans of action in the name of war. And the basis of the plan is a big new submarine of high speed.

It was, it must be confessed, British naval authorities who led the way with a super-submarine. A certain amount of flag waving was indulged in here in England over the completion of submarine No. 1 when she was the "largest in the world." The flag wavers—their further outlook obscured by the bulk of Great Britain's biggest—failed to realize that No. 1 was not the consummation, but a portent that the largest in the world was not going to remain a British monopoly.

Submarines can be built up to 10,000 tons if the naval architects can design and naval officers can navigate submarines of that size. There is nothing in the Washington limitation treaty to prevent it. They can build any number. The number of eight inch guns they can mount is governed only by the law of mechanics and not by diplomatic restriction. And there are powers that are determined that nothing on earth shall compel them to restrict that construction, and that design.

Cruises 20,000 Miles.
The flag wavers missed another portent when another big British submarine, K-26, went on a cruise to Singapore and back. She steamed some 20,000 miles and was away from home base eight months, was attended by no depot ship, repair ship, fuel ship or consort of any kind, spent four months in the tropics, and had not a single case of illness among the crew.

That was not really an occasion for flag waving. It must have made the angels weep. For the K-26 showed by that cruise that a modern large submarine is just as much an ocean rover as any cruiser or commerce raider built to work on the surface only.

The commander of a modern large submarine working on the traffic lanes of the wider oceans of the world, far away from all anti-submarine bases, could do what the K-26 did. The possibility of being captured or attacked is small.

Speed is one of the factors that has increased enormously. There are not half a dozen submarines, so far as my advice goes, in the American navy that can do more than fifteen knots. But the K-26 can do 23.5 knots (an official figure). The new Japanese craft can do at least 18 knots, and probably more. The French Redoubtables are of a nominal 18 knot speed. The Italian Balillas are to do 18.5 knots, and there is another Italian design not yet laid down for 21 knots.

Affects Every American.
Now there are 29,024 steam and motor ships in the merchant services of the world, and only about the odd twenty-four have enough speed to escape if attacked by one of these modern submarines. There are 29,000 merchant ships in the world, in peril of being sunk without warning if war breaks out.

With such weapons of offense unrestricted either by international agreement as to use or as to quantity in any one fleet, it is to be wondered at that the weaker powers look askance at any effort to limit naval construction in small craft.

That is a measure of the submarine period of today and tomorrow. And that fact affects the prosperity of every farmer, every manufacturer, every laborer, every shopkeeper from one end of the United States to the other, whether he has ever seen a ship in his life or not. Because it is ships that carry the trade of the world. It is ships that make it possible to sell American goods in Australia, China, Asia, Uruguay, Sweden and Ceylon. And if ships are sunk American goods are sunk also. And if ships are sunk they cannot return to carry more American goods to the market.

It is the ambition of America to carry its goods overseas in its own merchant navy. And if that merchant navy is not protected from assault by international law it must be protected by force. America will need all the anti-submarine forces and devices that it can obtain if its merchant navy is to continue to exist in time of war.

I have said that there is great secrecy about submarine designs. There is even greater secrecy about anti-submarine methods. There is in the British navy a special anti-submarine department and training school. Its work never have been described, but the effects of its work were very forcibly announced in public one night in a speech by one of the most famous submarine officers in the British navy.

Devises New Protective Measures.
Capt. Max C. Horton, who wrote page after page of his story during the war, addressed the London Press club and said:

"During the war the measures taken against submarines became very severe, but not very destructive

Herbert Tareyton
CIGARETTES
"There's something about them you'll like"

Since the war those anti-submarine measures have advanced very much, indeed. Submarines, however, are not dead by any means.

Naval architects have learned a lot about anti-submarine work. The depth charge was effective against the frail construction of the war and pre-war submarines. The modern types are much more strongly built. The depth charge would have to explode very near a modern submarine to effect any vital damage. The old time struggle between gun and armour as applied to surface fighting ships is being repeated with different devices in the case of under water ships and their enemies.

Where does the American navy stand in this matter? Is it only playing a wait and see game—waiting to see if Europe will agree to stop building small craft? Or is it developing new devices for the protection of commerce, experimenting, waiting for new types of anti-submarine vessel and convoy vessel, mapping out routes of convoys in event of sudden emergency, training mercantile marine officers to work with navy officers in friendly understanding for mutual protection, building up from all the knowledge gathered during the bitter months of experience in 1917-18, a system that will insure sea borne traffic against similar shock in the future? Or is it to be pious hope in the effectiveness of Geneva or Locarno or some other pleasant holiday resort of diplomats and their underworked secretaries?

Great Britain is quite disillusioned on the subject. Great Britain is planning anti-submarine warfare "as requisite" to the "usual naval formula."

ITALY WILL TIE STRINGS ON NAVY SLASHING DICKER

Gives Refusal of Small Powers to Disarm.

ROME, Feb. 13.—(AP)—In general terms the Italian press asserts President Coolidge's disarmament proposal is valuable as an invitation to both the large and small powers to clear the atmosphere surrounding the disarmament problem, but it does not contribute tangibly to a real solution. The press echoes a semi-official communique issued this evening which emphasizes the difficulties that seem to justify skepticism. The American invitation, the communique says, is being studied personally by Premier Mussolini, with the aid of Admiral Ciano, chief of staff of the navy, and other experts.

Italy Looks Out for Self First.

"Without intending to anticipate Italy's official answer," the communique continues, "it can be immediately affirmed that Italy, in view of her modest naval program, could never consent to measures endangering even indirectly her vital interests. It is necessary, moreover, to point out that between 1922 and the present time several new facts have presented themselves, such as the failure of the Rome conference in 1924 of the small powers and the accelerated program for naval construction, of several of the large and small powers which face or can enter the Mediterranean."

The tone of the communique, which obviously is officially inspired, confirms the opinion in political circles that Italy is willing to show good will by accepting the invitation to discuss the proposal, but with absolute insistence on reservations protecting her vital defensive interests.

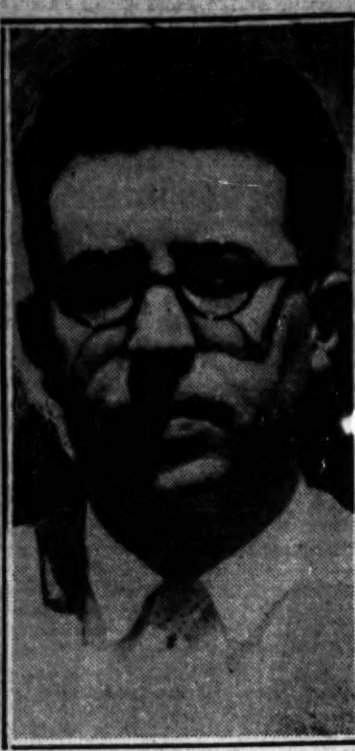

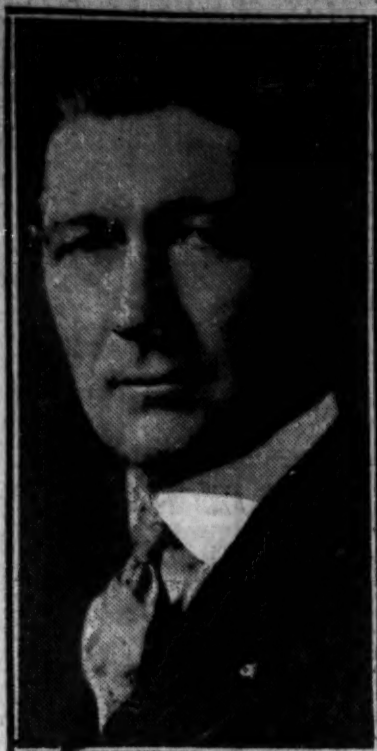

The Messagero, remarking that England would probably accept, France and Germany approve the proposal, says their attitudes, as well as the eventual official replies, can be easily foreseen because President Coolidge's plan brings no new light on almost well known difficulties. The proposal is useful, however, the newspaper maintains, as affording all the nations of the world a definite opportunity to make known their potentialities, their needs of commerce and expansion.

Experts Coolidge to Profit.

"This," adds the paper, "it may be possible to examine now each of the powers envisages the general question of future warfare. Those discussions will serve to clarify the international atmosphere, which needs sincerity and light."

The Popolo Roma recognizes in the proposal President Coolidge's

"diplomatic ability, tactfulness and open-mindedness."

It asserts the White House is bound to profit by the proposal, and whether it succeeds or fails, it will do so in case of the former by increasing its political prestige and fortification of America's naval security and in case of failure by justifying the republican administration in launching a strong navy program.

"Japan's Navy at Minimum."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Minister of the Navy Takarabe in a statement to the press today says that Japan's Navy is at an irreducible minimum and therefore can no more be a menace to anyone than as, according to President Coolidge, the American army and air force are no menace.

Inasmuch as Japan's reply has not yet been decided on, Mr. Takarabe said he is unable definitely to outline the position, but the navy is ready unhesitatingly to enter the international conference on naval limitation provided the vital necessities of the empire are safeguarded.

Experts now are drafting a reply which will be a qualified acceptance of President Coolidge's proposal.

CHURCH COUNCIL TELLS POWERS IT BACKS COOLIDGE

Sends Message Indorsing Limited Navy Plea.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Federal Council of Churches in America has cabled to the churches of Great Britain, France, and Japan a statement endorsing President Coolidge's message regarding further limitation of naval armament and announcing that the churches of this country "as a unit will stand resolutely behind the President."

The statement will be disseminated among the churches of Great Britain by the Christian Conference on Politics, Economics and Citizenship, familiarly known as "Copec," embracing all Protestant churches there. In France distribution will be made by the Federation of Evangelical Churches, and in Japan by the National Christian council, embracing twenty denominations.

The announcement was signed by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the federal council, under authorization of the other officers of the organization.

The message to the foreign churches follows:

"The message to congress by President Coolidge telling of his communication to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan with regard to further limitation of naval armament has been received with deep gratification. The churches of the country as a unit will stand resolutely behind the President."

"The Federal Council of Churches has repeatedly taken action urging further reduction of armaments by the nations, and specifically at its meeting Dec. 24, 1925, expressed its advocacy of 'the policy of broadening the application of the spirit and principles of the limitation of armament formulated at the Washington conference.'

Coolidge Ethics Praised.

"The spirit shown by the President in his approach to the European nations, his sympathetic understanding of their problems and his manifest appreciation of the highly complex and intricate character of the question of disarmament, impress us with his comprehensive and discriminating grasp of the actualities of the situation. We believe that the peculiar difficulties of the European nations require the most sympathetic consideration, but that they can be met if dealt with in a spirit of mutual good will."

"We hope that the house and senate will wholeheartedly support the President in this program and will do nothing to jeopardize it or to hamper its practical realization."

"It is earnestly to be hoped that the President will push his proposal persistently and persuasively and that the governments and peoples of the other nations will receive this appeal in the same spirit and good faith with which it is issued and will respond, to his earnest request for prompt action."

Alternative Is III Will.

"Our people should realize what the alternatives are—either a positive program for ending further competition in naval armaments, or renewed and unrestricted competitive naval building programs, inevitably causing immediate increase of mutual suspicion and ill will, heavy increases in naval building budgets and corresponding waste of money and resources of all the nations, which ought to be used for the benefit of their peoples and for the amelioration of their financial distresses."

"We believe that the President is right in declaring that 'competitive armaments constitute one of the most dangerous contributing causes of international suspicion and discord' and calculated eventually to lead to war."

CHINESE TO SEE TOM ATKINS IN PANOPLY OF WAR

1,500 Britons Will March in Shanghai Today.

By JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1927. By The Chicago Tribune.]
SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—The British have definitely decided to land their troops at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from the transports Desma and Takfwal, according to a statement made to The Tribune correspondent by Col. E. Sangster, the commandant, today. Two battalions, consisting of 1,500 men, will disembark.
Headed by a marine band, the troops will march along the bund for a review by the officers, following which they will proceed along Nanking road, through the heart of the city, to the race course, five miles from the foreign concessions, and in the heart of the Chinese area. Half of the force will be quartered at the race track. The remainder will march to the property of the Shanghai Municipal Council, where the barracks are in readiness.
Owing to the steady downpour of rain the arrival of the transports has not attracted much attention from the Chinese, who, seemingly, are not interested in the fact that for the first time in nearly a third of a century English troops have entered Chinese territory.
Chinese Demand Council Seats.
More than 2,000 Chinese property owners in the Shanghai international settlement today, acting through the Chinese rate payers' associations, announced their intentions to start negotiations for representation on the municipal council of the international settlement. The Chinese committee, which is composed of nine members,

EXPLORATION

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The hitherto little-known Kola peninsula, where the east and west meet in the Arctic, will be explored soon by two Scandinavian expeditions. Kola is a peninsula between Finland and the White sea, northwest of Archangel, and until visited by a Swedish geological expedition in 1887 under the leadership of Baron J. A. Falman was virtually a "terra incognita."
The first of the projected expeditions will be a botanical expedition under the direction of Dr. Bjorn Florén, chief surgeon of the Crown Princess Louise Institute for Children in Stockholm. He will start early this summer.
The second expedition will be under the command of the Norwegian explorer, Fridtjof Nansen, and will not leave until a year from now. It will take up the population problems, rather than animals or vegetation. It has been granted aid by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller memorial fund of New York.

Includes C. T. Wang, former premier and foreign minister, who is chairman; Sung Han-chang, head of the Bank of China; Yu Ewa-chang, former president of the chamber of commerce; David K. T. Yui, head of the Chinese Y. M. C. A., and the remainder are prominent bankers and business men.
In the preliminary announcement the Chinese demand joint control over the international settlement, basing their action upon the recent announcement of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, regarding the future status of the British concessions, and the suggestion of United States secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg that America is willing to assist in a revision of the charter of the international settlement, granting the Chinese representation.

Pay 50 Per Cent of Taxes.
Members of the committee told The Tribune correspondent today that the Chinese do not want to create apprehension, but they are not satisfied with the offer made by the foreign authorities two years ago to grant the Chinese three members on the council, which now contains nine members, all foreigners.

One member said, "In view of the fact that the Chinese pay approximately 50 per cent of the taxes toward the upkeep of the settlement, we demand at least six members on the council, similar to the present British representation."
Foreign anxiety respecting the future is indicated in the slump in municipal bonds from above par to 52.

Japan Mobilizes More Marines.

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Peking and Canton have probably reached an agreement regarding their policy before the league of nations, despite their embroilment in one of the bitterest civil wars of modern times. Such an interpretation is placed in league circles upon an unequivocal statement which Chao Hsin-chu, the Chinese representative to the league, felt called upon to issue from a sick bed here today. Chao insisted he would represent all factions in China at the meeting of the league council on March 7.

"Some have suggested that the league of nations should deal with the Chinese situation, while others insist that the league is not competent, alleging that I do not represent all China," he told the press.

"I represent China as a whole. My mandate is complete. I have behind me 400,000,000 Chinese including young, old, north and south. The Chinese may have internal differences, but they are united upon their external policy."

Chang Moves 50,000 Troops.
SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Marshal Chang Tso-lin, war lord of Manchuria, is reported to be moving 50,000 troops north of the Yellow river for a drive on Hankow.
Fresh troop movements have been reported from Shantung and Chang's mobilization is taken as a co-operative movement. The Shantung troops are already moving southward.
The combined drive southward may precipitate a major engagement.

Cantonese Held Up Reply to Britain.
HANKOW, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, has refused to reply to the British proposals dealing with the administration of British concessions here, asserting the proposals were not addressed properly. The proposals were submitted by British Charge d'Affaires O'Malley and purport to grant the Chinese officials a preponderance of the authority in governing the concessions.

Chen and O'Malley however, have reached the basis for an agreement according to a reliable authority, which Chen himself plans to announce shortly in a statement.

According to reports from Canton, the Cantonese officials have refused to permit postal officials appointed by Peking to assume office and have ousted Peking appointees who were already at work.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Marshal Chang Tso-lin, war lord of Manchuria, is reported to be moving 50,000 troops north of the Yellow river for a drive on Hankow.

Fresh troop movements have been reported from Shantung and Chang's mobilization is taken as a co-operative movement. The Shantung troops are already moving southward.

The combined drive southward may precipitate a major engagement.

Cantonese Held Up Reply to Britain.

HANKOW, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, has refused to reply to the British proposals dealing with the administration of British concessions here, asserting the proposals were not addressed properly. The proposals were submitted by British Charge d'Affaires O'Malley and purport to grant the Chinese officials a preponderance of the authority in governing the concessions.

Chen and O'Malley however, have reached the basis for an agreement according to a reliable authority, which Chen himself plans to announce shortly in a statement.

According to reports from Canton, the Cantonese officials have refused to permit postal officials appointed by Peking to assume office and have ousted Peking appointees who were already at work.

Factions Agree on League Policy.

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—(U. N. J.)—Peking and Canton have probably reached an agreement regarding their policy before the league of nations, despite their embroilment in one of the bitterest civil wars of modern times.

Such an interpretation is placed in league circles upon an unequivocal statement which Chao Hsin-chu, the Chinese representative to the league, felt called upon to issue from a sick bed here today. Chao insisted he would represent all factions in China at the meeting of the league council on March 7.

"Some have suggested that the league of nations should deal with the Chinese situation, while others insist that the league is not competent, alleging that I do not represent all China," he told the press.

"I represent China as a whole. My mandate is complete. I have behind me 400,000,000 Chinese including young, old, north and south. The Chinese may have internal differences, but they are united upon their external policy."

Resolution of State Bar Board.

By way of contrast, the board of resolution of the state bar association, openly aired their disapproval of this executive interference, exercised solely because Justice Stone voted to ho. Small accountable for the interest money he withheld while state treasurer.

This condemnation was embodied in a resolution praising Justice Stone's services and urging his renomination.

Publication of this evidence of support was coincident with the ovation given Justice Stone by the Peoria Bar Association at its Lincoln day banquet.

KILLS DOCTOR HE BLAMES FOR DEATH OF SON

Father, Crazed by Grief,
Slays Young Physician.

New York, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—Joseph Caruso, 6 years old, died at noon today of diphtheria. The body lay in the kitchen of a four room Brooklyn flat, while his mother, Marie, with an eleven month old child in her arms, and four other children at her side, wept. The father, Frank, alternately wept and stormed.

"It's the doctor's fault!" he shouted. "Was the doctor's fault. I'm going to kill that doctor."

Find Doctor Dead in Flat.

Three hours later Dr. Casper S. Pendola, 25, who had been called for the first time by Caruso the day before, was found lying on the floor in the Caruso flat with a butcher knife lying beside him. Caruso had disappeared.

"My husband was crazy with sorrow," sobbed Mrs. Caruso. "He said it was the doctor's fault that our boy was dead. He said he would kill the doctor."

Dr. Abbato of Holy Family hospital, who had also been called earlier and had pronounced Joseph dead, looked up from his examination of Dr. Pendola's body.

"He's dead; jugular vein severed; died immediately," he said.

"No, no!" she cried. "My husband didn't do it. He's a good man. He wouldn't kill anybody. I did it! I did it! I took the knife. I killed him."

Children Describe Slaying.

The children, Lena, 5 years old, Josephine, 8 years old, Anna, 3 years old, and Salvatore, 2 years old, were in the room. Anna and Salvatore were too young to understand what they had seen. But Lena and Josephine understood, for they had seen most of the slaying, standing by the door of the kitchen, where their little brother Joseph lay dead. They gave the police the story of what had happened.

Joseph had been ill for a fortnight with diphtheria without regular attention, although the apartment had been quarantined by the health department.

Dr. Pendola was called yesterday, he injected antitoxin in little Joe's arm. The boy succumbed today. The crazed father slew the doctor when he called to see the patient, not knowing he had succumbed. Caruso fled after the slaying, but was arrested tonight in the home of his brother in New Brighton, Long Island. He was charged with murder.

Caruso told police he killed Dr. Pendola because the physician laughed when he was told the boy was dead. Caruso declared he first choked his victim into unconsciousness and then secured a knife and cut his throat.

REPROACHES WIFE
AS SPENDTHRIFT;
SHE TAKES LIFE

William Bruhn, 1225 Wolfram street, street car conductor, thought he had $400 in the bank subject to a joint checking account with his wife, Anna, 35 years old and the mother of three children.

Saturday he went to draw out $600 as a payment for a lot on which to erect a home in Calumet City. He was told that Mrs. Bruhn had closed out the account. The husband went home and upbraided his wife for her extravagance when he found that the money had all been spent, he told police.

Yesterday morning he came home from work and found his wife dead in the bathroom. She had attached a hose to the gas jet and put the other end in her mouth. An inquest will be held today.

NO WHITE HOUSE BEE BUZZING ABOUT HIM, DR. BUTLER ASSERTS

New York, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, whose recent speech, expressing belief that President Coolidge would not be a candidate for election to a "third term" and that prohibition would be a leading issue in the next national campaign, created considerable consternation among New York state Republicans, denied today that he intended to be a candidate for the Republican nomination in 1928.

Declaring that his remarks seemed to have been misinterpreted, Dr. Butler asserted that he considered it his duty to discuss public questions frankly as a private citizen.

In a statement, interpreted as being in part a reply to Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, who said in a speech at the National Republican club Saturday night that anti-third term suggestions emanated from Democrats and those who would like to obtain the Republican nomination for President, Dr. Butler said he had no such designs.

Mrs. Mattie Ransome, 50 years old, 5222 West 95th street, was struck by an automobile in Oak Lawn two weeks ago. She died at her home. Herman Griffin of Evergreen Park, alleged to have been the driver of the car, was arrested.

The second victim was Mrs. Maud Taylor, 43 years old, 4256 West Washington boulevard. She was struck on Jan. 29 by a bus at Kildare avenue and Washington boulevard. The driver, Alex Allen, 748 South Kilbourn avenue, was arrested.

Napoli, Panomzo, and Miss Savant were taken to the Chicago hospital by the police. A passerby took Miss Goryl to the German Deaconess hospital.

Nine persons were injured last night when automobiles driven by H. M. Plunkett, 2628 Hampden court, and Rudolph Stopa, 654 Gordon terrace, collided in Lincoln park near the Grant monument. All were taken to the Columbus Memorial hospital, where it was said their injuries were not serious.

GRAVE ROBBER MURDER CLEWS TRACED HERE

Bodies to Be Hunted Near Grave Robbers' Shack.

While James H. Coyner, grave robber, was being further questioned in his cell at Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City last night, Cook county officials opened an inquiry into Coyner's activities last summer when the Negro was a member of a Lansing, Ill., construction gang. Officials here said that a search at Lansing might develop that Coyner is a murderer as well as a grave robber. Ownership of a trunk, containing the skulls of four women, which was found in an old house at Ferndale, near Detroit, Mich., has been definitely traced to Coyner, officials say. Finding of the skulls led to the discovery that Coyner is serving a term at Michigan City for removing the body of a woman, dead for more than ten years, from a grave at Oak Hill cemetery, near Hammond. He was trapped with the body and arrested last November.

May Reveal More Bodies.
A search of the grounds surrounding the shack Coyner lived in at Lansing may bring to light further bodies, it is believed, since the Negro, in a confession when first arrested, declared he had intended to take the Oak Hill cemetery body to Lansing.

Coyner repudiated his confession before his conviction as a grave robber and now he also insists he knows nothing of the skulls found at Ferndale. But confronted with letters written a Chicago woman friend, whom he affectionately terms "sister," Coyner merely hangs his head. The letters, found by police in a search of the woman's home at 1307 South State street, contains frantic appeals to "get my trunk before the law finds it."

Wells Starts Search.

Coroner Oscar Wells and his chief deputy, Harry Skagerberg, yesterday searched Coyner's former quarters at Lansing and inspected the nearby area. Coyner may have committed murder in addition to yielding to his obsession for rifling the graves of women, the coroner believes, pointing out that such a male includes a desire to kill. The coroner indicated he may have the ground about the shack excavated today in a search for graves.

Warden Dally of the Indiana prison scouts the theory that Coyner is a murderer. The Negro is simply obsessed with a mania for digging up the corpses of women, he believes.

"It is highly possible, though, that Coyner took those skulls with him when he went to Ferndale last summer," declared the warden. "In that case he undoubtedly rifled other graves in this locality."

"He may tell us all about it yet. Then we'll find out where he hid the bodies."

An attempt is being made to trace to Coyner, the headless body of a woman found on Thursday in the St. Joseph river at South Bend, Ind. Coroner Carl Relfels says the woman could have been dead for months and he is sure she did not die from drowning. The river extends over a good portion of the route between Lansing and Ferndale, Chief James J. Hatt of South Bend points out.

PRINCIPAL AGAIN ARRESTED; CASE TO GRAND JURY

Six Girls Charge Petting
Parties in Office.

Henry V. Wolfum, principal of the Palmer school, was rearrested last night on charges of having taken indecent liberties with several girl pupils and the state's attorney's office is prepared to go before the grand jury today to ask his indictment. Wolfum was locked up in Town Hall police station while several principals of other schools attempted to obtain his freedom on bonds.

The arrest of the principal yesterday followed his arrest and release on bonds last Friday, when he was charged with contributing to the delinquency of pupils.

Girls ranging in age from 12 to 14 years told new stories of Wolfum's attentions to them when they were called before Assistant State's Attorney Harold Levy in the Criminal Court building. Four of the pupils were new to the case which already had included about twenty who complained that their principal made improper advances.

Wolfum Issues Denial.
When Wolfum was confronted with the new evidence he issued a statement categorically denying the charges.

"Why, it is ridiculous," he said. "These stories are absolutely false. They indicate a plot among certain pupils to get vengeance against me for my action last year in refusing to acquiesce in their choice as my assistant."

Stories that the child complainants told yesterday were to the effect that Wolfum called them into his private office at the school on the pretext of having them do clerical work, or of talking to them about their studies.

Once inside, the girls declared, he pulled and fondled them, talked in indecent language, and cautioned them not to tell their mothers.

Girls Confront Principal.

KESSINGER TO MOVE FOR CONVENTION TO REDISTRICT STATE

When the state legislature reassembles tomorrow Senator Harold C. Kessinger of Aurora intends to introduce a resolution providing for a state constitutional convention.

The two chief purposes he has in view, he said yesterday, are the revision of the revenue article and a solution of the reapportionment problem. In this latter connection he said emphatically that his step was not a move against Senator John Dalley's resolution calling for redistricting.

"I shall not oppose the Dalley resolution," said the Aurora, "but, on the other hand, I shall vote for it and expect to see it pass the senate Wednesday."

"But many of us are extremely skeptical about the possibility of success crowning the work of the proposed special joint committee. I doubt seriously that the committee will be able to agree upon new boundaries or even that the Cook county members can agree among themselves. If this prediction is realized I shall press my resolution for a new constitutional convention, but shall not press it until that time arrives."

Senator Kessinger said he believes a compromise between Cook county and downstate must be worked out.

ing yesterday, they were permitted to tell their own stories, and three of them were singled out to make their accusations directly against Wolfum in Mr. Levy's office.

"Revolution! That is the only way I can describe these charges," Mr. Levy said.

While Wolfum is scheduled to appear before Judge Edgar A. Jones in Town Hall court this morning for a hearing on the first charge filed against him, Mr. Levy last night was planning to ask speedy grand jury action against the educator. The case will be laid before the grand jury at 9 o'clock this morning by Edward Spiro of the state's attorney's office, with the request for an immediate indictment on each of the two charges.

To Ask Maximum Penalty.

The statutes provide a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment or a $5,000 fine, or both, on each count. The maximum will be asked, Mr. Levy announced.

Interest of the state's attorney's office was aroused in the case Saturday when the parents of a number of Palmer school pupils appealed to State's Attorney Robert H. Crowe for action. He assigned Mr. Levy to the case.

Yesterday morning at 11:30 the six girls and their parents were brought to his office where they told their stories while a court stenographer recorded the statements. At 5 o'clock two policemen were sent after Mr. Wolfum, who agreed to face the children "without the formality of being arrested." He was questioned at length and at 7:30 o'clock Mr. Levy ordered that he be locked up.

Colleagues Back Accused.

In the meantime a number of principals of other schools, headed by D. J. Beebe, principal of the Oglesby school and president of the Principals' club, appeared at the Criminal Court building and announced their intention of aiding Mr. Wolfum "both morally and financially if necessary."

"The entire list of principals in Chicago is on trial as well as Mr. Wolfum," Mr. Beebe announced in explaining his action. "This case has given us all a black eye, and in fairness to those of us who will, as a result of these charges, be possibly suspected, we must lend our help in clearing up the case. We do not believe Mr. Wolfum guilty of the accusations. His record is too good for that. But, if he is found guilty by a court, then of course we would condemn him, too. In the meantime, however, we are in the fight on his side, and we will see that justice is done and that he is given a fair trial."

Others to Aid Him.

Two other educators who announced they would be active in Mr. Wolfum's support are George A. Beebe, principal of the Marshall High school, and Frank Lark, principal of the Stowe school. Miss Elizabeth Murphy, assistant superintendent in charge of the Palmer school, announced on Saturday that she would aid Wolfum.

In the course of questioning yesterday, Mr. Wolfum was asked how he could explain the reason for the children's charges if they were not true. He said that he was inclined to blame the old feud he had with parents of his district, but that if it were not the cause, "then I do not know what it is." He admitted that none of the children who made the charges were among those whose parents have opposed him in his school policies.

Teacher Tells of Stories.

Mr. Levy scouted a frame-up theory, and produced Mrs. Luella Cutler, 2577 Greenview avenue, teacher of English in the Palmer school, who he said came to his office last night and told him that a number of the girls involved had come to her with stories that they were afraid to go into Wolfum's office because of "things other girls had said he did to them." Mrs. Cutler told Mr. Levy, the prosecutor said, that she immediately sent the children home to their parents with the advice that they tell all. The fact that the children first went to Mrs. Cutler refutes all possibility of a frame-up on the part of the parents, Mr. Levy believes.

Wolfum's wife, who is the mother of three children, was in constant attendance on her husband yesterday and announced that she would help him in his fight.

County Police Raid Inn; Nab 53 Men and Women

Acting under orders of Chief Michael Hughes, a squad of county highway police raided the Cadillac Inn at 1430 street and Western avenue early yesterday and arrested fifty-three persons, including twenty women. All were charged with disorderly conduct. Participating in the raid were Sergeants Tapcott, Fremont, Brennan, McCarthy, and Nick Hughes. Three of those arrested were carrying revolvers.

LONELY WOMEN HELP GOTHAM 'Y' SHED BACHELORS

Letters Pour In on One Year Limit Notice.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Women, young and not so young, from many parts of the country are seeking to force the rôle of matrimonial agency on the West Side Young Men's Christian association here, which recently announced a one year limit of dormitory residence.

The impression had gone forth that the limit was set to stir bachelors to seek homes of their own, but the Y. M. C. A. has denied it wants to "force men to marry."

The west side branch officials have been deluged with pink, violet and sealed applications for "good husbands."

"I am kindly answering an article which appeared in our evening papers about bachelors at the Y. M. C. A.," writes a widow from the far west, "35 years of age and American born."

Some Sample Missives.
"I am looking for a man forty to forty-five years of age. I am young looking and of very good appearance. I have dark hair, and brown eyes, and light complexion. Please do not send any of these young men over here, but send their pictures first. I am not kidding. I mean it. Please answer this letter. What about the New York girls?"

A writer from the middle west said: "I have read in my home town paper that there are many bachelors quartered in the West Side Y. M. C. A. who will have to leave after a year and may be wanting to meet some prospective wives. I am a widow lady, nice looking, jolly, good natured, affectionate, and most of all a good cook, and I would like to correspond with a real nice looking man. Of course, you never can tell what will happen. I would like a picture, and if I hear from this letter I will send one of mine."

Bachelor Worm Turns.
The association has also received a number of communications from irate bachelors, the country over.
"When women will be trained to be good wives, as of old, men will get married," write one young man.
"At present men are now getting only gold diggers who are looking forward to joining the alimony class."

Rejecting these opportunities to

SOCIAL SCIENCE STUDENT ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Martin A. Gerhart, Batavia, Ia., 33 year old student of social science at Princeton graduate college, committed suicide by inhaling gas today.

Gerhart's wife has been in a sanitarium near here for several months suffering from a nervous breakdown.

A sealed letter addressed to her was found on a kitchen table. The couple had been married for two years.

Gerhart received the degree of bachelor of science from the University of Iowa in 1923 and the degree of master of arts from the University of Chicago in 1926.

OLD CAIRO GETS MODERN THRILL; COP, YEGG BATTLE

BY STANLEY PARKER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 12.—A pitched battle—the outgrowth of a hold-up—occurred in Cairo's principal shopping street, Foad I, at noon today when the street was crowded with persons returning from church or taking their usual stroll.

Patrolmen were started to hear shots within the shop of a jeweler named Bercovich. Among those routed by the shots was a secret policeman named Iskandar Rabbo, who was in a cafe opposite, shadowing a pair of men suspected of being cocaine traffickers.

Wounds Self in Foot.
The policeman ran across the street and saw an Egyptian, subsequently identified as Mahmoud Khandil, trying to escape from the shop. Falling to open the door, Khandil made a running jump through the plate glass window and alighted on the pavement. He was confronted by the detective. The robber fired hastily, wounding himself in the foot. The detective fired into the air to scatter the crowd, who already were fleeing in panic.

Khandil then fired point blank, wounding the detective in the stomach. The latter returned the fire and wound of the robber just above the heart. The robber collapsed on the sidewalk. The death and the robber were taken to a hospital, where they were operated on. Both are in a serious condition.

Shopkeeper, Son Slain.
Police, meanwhile, entered the jewelry shop, where they found the proprietor and his son on the floor dead. The father had a bullet through the temple. The son had been wounded with a bullet and strangled with a native turban.

The shop had been looted of a large quantity of jewelry and money, all of which was recovered from Khandil.

ROBBED AS HE ENTERS ASHES.
John Henry, 1725 North Franklin avenue, took a bucket of ashes into the alley in the rear of his home Saturday night and two minutes later $500 was gone.

OPEN PARLEY TODAY ON NEW WAGE SCALE FOR SOFT COAL MINES

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13.—(P)—Union miners and bituminous coal operators of the central competitive field were here tonight preliminary to opening a parley tomorrow, when they will seek to negotiate a new wage scale for the industry.

The new wage scale must replace the Jacksonville agreement of 1924, which expires on March 31. While any agreement formulated here will be for the central competitive field, outlying districts will make their wage agreements on the basis of central field negotiations.

Public Gets Ready.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(P)—While leaders of the coal miners' union and mine operators are discussing at Miami a new wage scale for the soft coal districts, coal consumers and the general public apparently are stocking up to avoid a possible shortage in event of a strike.

The government bureau of mines, announcing the result of a special survey, said today that the country had on hand some 60,000,000 tons of soft coal Jan. 1, or about 6,000,000 tons more than on the same date a year ago.

BOY IS CAUGHT TAKING WOMAN'S PURSE AT CHURCH

John Menna, 14 years old, 737 South Robey street, was taken to the Maxwell street police station yesterday after the Rev. John Foley caught him snatching the purse of a woman who was attending mass at the St. Paul de Padua church.

When he was searched it was disclosed that he had already taken two purses from church attendants, adding that he had been stealing in this manner for several weeks. He was asked if he belonged to the church. "No," he replied. "I just go there for business."

The Fabric Fashion Show Opens This Morning

Combinations—the magic word of the mode this season—will be seen at their newest and best in a "combined" Fashion Show of all the Fabric Sections. Spring costumes inspired by the new silks, laces, wools and cottons will be shown in promenades each day at eleven and at two o'clock, on stages specially erected.

New—The Van Dongen Silks

Shown only at "Field's" in Chicago, these delightfully vivacious floral silks were inspired by the paintings of Kees Van Dongen, an exceedingly well-known painter of the modern school in Paris. His paintings, several of which are displayed in the windows with the silks created from them, disclose the brilliant technique that gives these silks such amazing individuality and charm. They represent admirably the splendid collection of spring silks, many of them developed into costumes shown daily at the Fashion Promenades.

Sportslike Wool Coatings for Spring

The jaunty coat of tweed or homespun so long monopolized by the country has come to town! Tweeds and homespuns in the talked of black and white, soft new blues, in fact every lovely springlike color, and in a thousand and one charming new weaves are in the Woolen Goods section—several made up for the Fashion Promenades.

Black Speaks of Lace Smartness

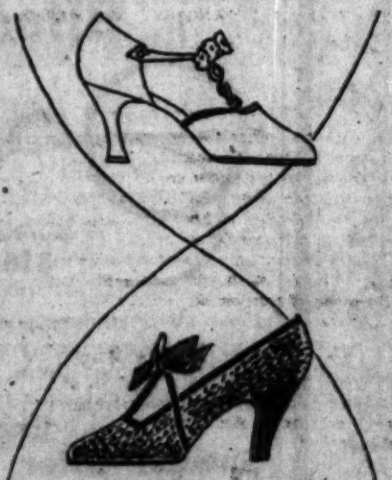

Black, much underscored this spring, is never smarter than in a gown of all lace, lovely and gracious. Such a gown is in the Fashion Promenades. Lace, too, in soft cream on the floating new Georgettes or these Georgettes in chic compose effect are also an important note of the season and of the Fabric Fashion Show as well.

Embroidery Makes Cottons Gay

You have not fathomed the full extent of fabric originality until you have seen the Cottons, many from St. Gall, Switzerland. Embroideries in quaint florals or eccentric points heighten their already sprightly colorings. These, too, are in the Fashion Promenades.

FABRIC SECTIONS, SECOND FLOOR

The Annual February Shoe Sale Is Now Midway!

A short month at best, and now but half of it remains in which to take care of a full season's shoe needs for every member of the family. Remember that not only is every pair of shoes in the house materially reduced, but that there are more exclusive new models, more of the highest type of American and French made shoes included than ever before. And remember, too, that all the special "Field" makes are priced lower.

Agnes Establishes the Violet Mode For Spring

For hats, boutonnières, or corsages violets are extremely good this spring. The hat pictured of white violets, after an Agnes model, is severe in its coquettish simplicity—and very smart. In white, because that is so greatly the spring mode, but it can be reproduced in any natural violet shade. Other copies and adaptations in violets are now in the French and debutante salons.

From Our Paris Cable

"Vionnet—Pin Tucks"

—and you will find them delightful in all of their variations. A coat may use them to form the modish deep points at the back, and on a dress they may be placed in a stunning sunburst pattern, give interesting bias effects, or perhaps just emphasize the long, slim silhouette.

By Its Neckline

—usually either square or V shaped—you shall know the "newness" of a frock. "The most important feature of the present season," says a report. In the dress sections you will note many of them and, too, the smart yoke which lies at the center back or front.

"Regny—Plaited Skirts"

—in two-piece models, and some of them have hip length coats to go with them. Belts, too, are sponsored by Jane Regny—the newest are the inch metal mesh belts—now to be found in our sections.

"Small Brims, Low Crowns"

—shorter in back, with crowns lower, many of them crushed at the side, back or front, are the up-to-the-minute contours of the new hats. Close-fitting hats with these new features are already displayed in our millinery sections.

"Evening—Rhinstones"

—the smartest gowns use them, and they are particularly lovely on the chiffons and tulle of all white. "Jet black beaded frocks" also are sponsored by Chanel. It's hard to imagine the stunning effects of these without visiting the women's costume sections on the sixth floor.

For Stockings—"Beige With a Yellowish Cast"

—is one of the newest things in the evening as well as daytime hose. Grain is the name of just such a shade in sheer chiffon in our hosiery sections, first and fifth floors.

Drecolli Emphasizes

—"for day and evening, black and white." And with the new hats, gowns, coats, furs, sports frocks here, you may completely outfit yourself in this fascinating combination in any type of costume—evening or trotteur.

"All Shades of Blue"

—one of the loveliest is the new "Sevres blue" like a Sevres vase. But all shades are good—Regny uses light blues, gray blues, green blues, purple blues and royal blue. These are interesting when several are used together with skill in the compose themes, important for Spring.

Southern Wear Models Reduced

From the Custom Apparel On the Ninth Floor

Created originally for exclusive Southern wear, these models and their adaptations, of finest workmanship and advanced design, are particularly appropriate for the coming spring and summer. A collection of dresses in the new silk prints, silks in the compose effects, smart wool crepes are included. Coats and Suits for now and for the months to come—are all drastically reduced to make room for arriving new models.

Orders for execution at February discounts should be placed in the next few days.

On the Sixth Floor The Newer Modes

Blonde Fox Accents the Chic Of Black Satin

The new compose theme is delightfully developed in this Wrap of black satin crepe with its collar of blonde fox, its pale yellow violets, its lining and untacked facing of blonde faille, its sleeve puff of yarn-embroidered stripes blending many tones from blonde to brown. $245. Also in black with gray.

This Smart Frock Combines Novel Materials

Modishness this spring will be attained by striking effects, by novel combinations—can you picture a more unusual Frock than one that trims navy or black flat crepe with bands of scarlet or royal blue and adds a patch pocket of gold embroidery and thin bark? It is priced $125.

Note the Russian side opening—this Frock has the slightly bloused back characteristic of a number of the new spring models.

MOST DELINQUENT BOYS FOUND IN BUSINESS AREA

Fewest in Suburbs, Says U. of C. Professor.

Four hundred and forty-three out of every 1,000 boys whose homes are in Chicago's central business district become delinquents and are haled into court between the ages of 11 and 17 years.

The figure is given in a study of social conditions made by Prof. Ernest W. Burgess of the University of Chicago. He found that juvenile delinquency grows less and less the farther the boys live from the loop and that it practically disappears in communities like Oak Park and the north shore towns.

For the purposes of his study, Prof. Burgess divided the city into five zones, represented in his charts as semi-circles. First is the central business section, including the loop and the territory immediately surrounding it. The second he calls the X zone of transition; the third the zone of second immigrant settlement; the fourth the zone of middle class residences, and the fifth the commuters' zone.

More Owners of Homes.

Home owning flourishes in the last two zones, the professor states. He found 52 per cent of the houses were owned by residents in the fifth zone, while less than 1 per cent in the first and second zones were owned by occupants.

"The zone in transition," he declares, "holds the most intense of Chicago's social problems. It is an area in which flourishes all that is picturesque and arresting in the modern city; bohemia, the ghetto, Greek town, Little Sicily, the cabarets, the spiritualistic halls and the Moody Bible Institute. It is the slum of every English and American city."

Skilled Workers Farther Out.

Skilled workers, Prof. Burgess finds, move their families farther out into the next zone, which is not too far from the factories in which they are employed. Professional and office groups inhabit the next zone.

Foreign born residents form 39 per cent of the population of the first zone, drop to 23 per cent in the next, to 19 in the third, to 19 in the fourth, and to 16.5 in the fifth. Of those living in zone 1, two of every thousand are in dire poverty, according to the study. In zone 2, the percentage is higher, 2.2. But in zone 5 it is only one-tenth of one per cent.

N. Y. CHURCH RESUMES DANCE BISHOP BARRED

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—With ten figures, five girls and five boys, clad in shiny mantles and going through the motions appropriate to the grave depiction of the Passion of Christ, ritualistic dancing was resumed today in St. Mark's-in-the-Bowery, the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie's church, for the first time in two years.

The actual performance was staid enough, and it is doubtful whether or not it would come under the Broadway definition of dancing. The whole was called by Dr. Guthrie a "sacred mime."

Inasmuch as it was a difference of opinion with Bishop William T. Manning that caused the withdrawal of ritualistic dancing two years ago, Dr. Guthrie was besieged with questions.

"You newspaper men," said Dr. Guthrie, "have Manning on your tummies. You'd call my action defiance; I merely call it sticking to my guns. You didn't believe me when I said we would 'suspend' two years ago."

"If the high church can introduce Roman Catholic ritual," said Dr. Guthrie, "we being a broad church, can introduce any other ritual we want."

GERMANY FIGHTS U. S. RESTRAINT ON IRON TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The conflict between the United States and Germany over anti-dumping measures taken by the Washington government has spread the greatest anxiety in German official circles. The German cabinet will appeal to international arbitration if necessary.

Germany asserts that no pig iron has been sold in the United States by Germans under its actual value, and that, therefore, the American anti-dumping measures are unjustified.

While the new cabinet, headed by Chancellor Marx, is confronted with the economic conflict with the United States, it finds itself unable to solve the difficult trade negotiations with France and Poland. France insists on a reduced tariff on wine imports into Germany, while Poland refuses the German demand for revision of laws on the treatment of foreigners.

AIDS HUNT FOR KIN, SOUGHT WITH HIM, AS KILLERS

MANILA, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The story of his life as one of the most hunted fugitives in the world was related today by Hugh de Autremont, under arrest as one of the three brothers who killed four men during the attempted robbery of a train near Ashland, Ore., more than three years ago.

He told of how on one occasion he joined a posse that was hunting him and his brothers, Ray and Roy de Autremont.

"We'll hang them if we catch them," the prisoner quoted a member of the posse as having said, to which De Autremont said he replied: "We sure will."

DOCTOR DEMANDS HALT ON MEDICAL BOOTLEG LIQUOR

Physicians' Council Will Hear Appeal Today.

Measures to improve the ethics of the medical profession, including the elimination of the bootleg prescription, will be suggested by Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, chairman of the American Council on Medical Education, at the opening of a three day conference in the Palmer house this morning.

"Most of the liquor prescriptions are not written for medical purposes," Dr. Bevan said last night, "but are issued by what we call the 'medical bootlegger'."

"Testimony of paid partisan experts in criminal trials will also be censured in my address. I have no fault to find with the physician rendering unbiased scientific testimony, but the alienist who can be hired to testify as his employer dictates is a detriment to our profession."

Among other evils to which Dr. Bevan will refer are unwarranted operations and secret division of fees. Friends in modern medical education with an emphasis on preventive medicine, together with the correlation of the work being done in medical colleges and hospitals, are to be discussed at the conference. Educators and physicians from every part of the United States will attend.

Two university presidents are on the list of speakers. Dr. Max Mason of the University of Chicago, will talk on the university's medical work. Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Lehigh University, is to discuss the medical curriculum.

Medical education for the general practitioner is to be discussed by Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., at this afternoon's session. Dr. Franklin C. McLean of the University of Chicago will present his opinion on the relation of a university to its school of medicine.

COMMUNISTS IN U. S. NUMBER ONLY 7,000, ASSERTS NEW BOOK

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The American communist movement, which had 35,000 members in 1919, has declined steadily until it has only 7,000 to 7,500 members today, says James O'Neal in his book, "American Communism," to be published tomorrow by the Rand School of Social Science.

Mr. O'Neal says that reports heard so frequently a few years ago of millions of communists in the United States were absurd exaggerations. While some eighteen or twenty organizations have been formed within eight years, the number is due to the difficulty members have in agreeing.

One of the striking incidents related in the book is the story of how the underground organization of the American communists unwittingly selected a secret agent of the government, Joseph Nosovitsky, to represent American communists at a secret meeting of the Third International in Amsterdam in 1920.

"A second delegate, Louis C. Fraina, also chosen for this mission, was charged with being a spy, and the real spy served as counsel for the suspect at a secret trial before communists in New York City," the Rand school says. "The spy obtained acquittal of the suspect and the two left for the Amsterdam conference. A year or two later the suspect, who had been one of the most conspicuous organizers of American communists, left Moscow with a sum of money for use in communist propaganda. He also disappeared."

The author contends that there is a striking analogy between the high tide of American communism in 1919-1921 and the situation in England in the decade after the French revolution. He finds a similarity between American communists of a few years ago and the British Jacobins.

U. S. Leads World Trade in Exports to Red Russia

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The United States has again taken the lead over the world in the export trade to Russia. For the first quarter of the current operating year America sent $117,000,000 worth of manufactured goods to Russia, which is about one million greater than for the same period last year. Germany was a close second, England third, and Poland fourth.

CAP TORN FROM ROBBER LEADS TO ARREST OF 2

Loss of his cap while beating off two victims who refused to be robbed resulted in the arrest early yesterday of a youthful bandit and his companion who had posed as a messenger boy.

Herbert P. Whalen, 1425 Farwell avenue, a fiber box manufacturer, was at home with his wife, and her father, Fred P. Rehfeld, 75 years old, when the doorbell rang. Whalen admitted a youth bearing a parcel, but right behind the supposed messenger came another man who leveled a revolver with a demand for Whalen's money.

Instead the manufacturer and Rehfeld seized the robber and twenty minutes later they were arrested by Sgt. Lawrence Cooney's detective bureau squad on this clue. The capless one said he is Cyril H. Piry, 23 years old, of 1442 School street, a bookkeeper. The other is William Torgler, 19, of 16 North Lincoln street. Whalen identified them.

MODERN GIRLS WANT VALENTINE LIKE GRANDMA'S

New York, Feb. 12.—The modern girl may affect a mannish haircut, carry a cigarette case in the pocket of her knickers and assume a hardboiled air, but just the same she wants—and gets—the same old-fashioned valentine that thrilled grandmother's heart half a century ago.

Supplying the annual demand for expressions of the tender sentiment is a large and growing industry. This year it will take $16,000,000 worth of dainty fabrications of lace, paper, crimson hearts and chubby Cupids to tell the old, old story.

Ranging in price and variety from the tiny penny folder which Bobby takes to school for the 6 year old vision across the aisle, to the elaborate confection, with its sentimental verse enshrined in a bower of ribbons and built up paper lace, the valentine of 1927 is very much the same as the models of the days of the horse and buggy ride and the Gibson girl.

LISBON CLEANS UP BIG DEBRIS OF ITS NTH REVOLT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
LISBON, Feb. 12.—The Portuguese government now is investigating the sources of the funds which backed the recent revolt. It is believed that the outbreak was prepared over a period of many months and at a great expenditure. A quantity of arms, it was discovered, had been smuggled to Oporto and Lisbon, from Spain.

A general cleaning up process is now taking place. Gangs are working to restore the street car, telephone and telegraph services, and the streets are being cleared of debris. Much damage was done to public buildings and private dwellings. The offices of the ministries of war, colonies and finance, the central railroad station and the hospital in Lisbon all bear signs of the struggle, while many private houses, forcibly occupied by rebels and extremists, are partly destroyed.

Leaders of the insurgents and a number of officers are in prison. Rebel soldiers, with 2,000 armed civilians who were arrested, have been placed in a fort. Hundreds of citizens who took part in the revolt have fled from Lisbon and Oporto.

"What am I then? The office boy? The boob who pays the rent?" He took a step forward, grasped Honey by the wrist.

THIS is the amazing story of "Honey" McNeill—the trials and triumphs of a beautiful girl.

Coming from a small town to New York, she faces the Great White Way, the intrigues of its shadowy night-life. Caught in the net of strange events, she fights her way, never realizing that she is the tool of a black-mailer.

Then comes a shocking expose—the papers are crucifying her and the man who befriended her.

The net has tightened—poor "Honey"! The small town Cinderella girl, finds herself in a love tangle such as only a master writer, Frederic Arnold Kummer, can unravel.

It is a frightful price she must pay for the love of the one man she wants as a husband, but she is willing to pay it—and does.

This powerful story has been pictureized by Paramount, under the direction of Edward Sutherland, noted for his skill in "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now," two of the most recent outstanding successes.

An all-star cast and wonderful setting make "Love's Greatest Mistake" a most finished, absorbing production.

Read this new story in Liberty, published for the first time—don't miss a chapter. See the picture at the theatre named below. Both story and picture will give a new thrill.

Honey caught a glimpse of her sister, struggling in Don's arms. He was trying to force Jane to his side.

END OF YEAR LULL FAILS TO CUT '26 RECORD BUSINESS

Factory Output 6 Per Cent
Higher than Ever.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Although a lull in industrial activity occurred during the last quarter of 1926, the level of industrial production for the year eclipsed all previous records, a review of business conditions by the federal reserve board showed. Production for the year was six per cent greater than the high level reached during the previous maximum period in the spring of 1924. During December and November, however, a recession was noted in practically all lines of manufacture, the output being smaller than in 1925. Increases were reported for the year in production of iron, steel, automobiles, textiles, rubber tires, petroleum products, non-ferrous metals and coal. Building activities increased four per cent, primarily in industrial and public buildings and public works.

Farmers' Income Drops. Construction of schools declined more than ten per cent, compared with an increase of forty per cent in industrial building. Residential building also fell off, although the total building, approximating $4,800,000,000, was much greater than in any other year. Somewhat larger wage payments prevailed in factories, with employment approximately the same. Income of farmers dropped below the 1925 level toward the end of the year, due to lower cotton prices and smaller yields of spring wheat and other crops raised in the northwestern states.

Prices received by the farmer were the lowest in four years, the review showed. But Merchants Do Well. Distribution to both wholesale and retail customers was larger than for any previous year, orderly marketing of the industrial and agricultural output constituting an important activity of the year.

Stocks of metals, building materials and rubber in various forms were somewhat larger at the end of 1926 than during the preceding two years, while stocks of petroleum, paper and leather, particularly the latter, were smaller.

Estimates of the value of commercial stocks of agricultural commodities also were less. For about fifteen commodities the decrease in value from the previous year was $200,000,000, and was $300,000,000 under the 1924 figure, the difference being due principally to increased cotton production.

Big Price Decline Noted. Along with wholesale prices in many other countries, the general level in the United States declined, reaching the lowest mark since 1923, excepting a few months in 1924. The decline affected almost all classes of commodities, being greatest in agriculture. Non-agricultural prices declined about three per cent, and in December were close to the lowest level in four years. The larger volume of trade at a lower level of prices was accompanied by a larger average volume of currency in circulation and a greater volume of bank credit in use, although each was less than in previous years. Currency in circulation in December last was $14,658,000 less than at the same time in 1925.

M'HENRY COUNTY TO DECIDE PARK ISSUE SATURDAY

Proposed System Called Benefit to Farmers.

"Much of the opposition of farmers to the proposed park district in parts of McHenry and Nunda townships in the Fox river valley would disappear if they only realized the benefits that would be brought to their doors," Louis A. Erickson, chairman of a McHenry county park committee, said last night.

Next Saturday the township voters will decide either for or against the proposition at a special election. Five commissioners are also to be chosen. Planners of the district have incorporated within it some forty square miles of lake, river, and adjacent property. At suitable scenic points in the area the parks have been considered. Each would be located on the river or surrounding one of the neighboring lakes.

Camp Sites Disappearing.
"Private parties are fast taking up the choice camping and fishing spots in the district," Mr. Erickson continued. "Before long the people living here will have to go away from home for this sort of recreation. Creation of the parks will afford playgrounds for future generations."
"If we lose, it will be because the farmers are opposed to anything that will add to their already unfair burden of taxes. Park values have declined while taxes have risen. I believe, however, that by election day we will have won over a majority of the owners."

Tax Burden to Be Small.
The burden of taxation will be extremely small when spread out over the entire park district, Mr. Erickson said. He predicted that subdivisions will soon be active there with benefit to the farm owner. Improvements of the kind planned, he said, always increase property values in a community far beyond their cost.

The Value of Human Life at all ages

"Broke"—
but Worth $79,100

Dad earns $50 a week. He has just paid the rent, the grocery bill and the milk bill. He says he is "broke, but happy".... In reality, he and his family are worth a small fortune.... This American family represents $79,100 of the nation's wealth.

ALMOST any man will agree that his life is more valuable to himself than the things he owns. Now he can have the comfort of knowing how valuable his life is to others—from a dollars-and-cents standpoint.

Today it is known that the lives of our men, women and children are the nation's greatest asset. The economic value of these lives completely overshadows the value of all of our material wealth.

Recent computations made by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show the real economic value of the lives of our people from babyhood to old age. These figures are based on the average family—with an average income—and take into consideration the average length of life of each member of the family, together with the cost of bringing children into the world, feeding them, clothing them, educating them and bringing them up to a self-supporting basis.

Long lives and short lives—small incomes and big incomes—are reckoned in these calculations. At 40, a man earning $100 a week is rated as having an economic value of $45,670. At 30, the $50-a-week man represents a value of $31,000. He had a value of $9,333 the day he was born.

—And then come the figures showing the total economic value of all the men, women and children of the United States—the astounding total of 1,500 billion dollars ($1,500,000,000,000).

* If you wish to find out how much each member of your family is worth, economically, send for a booklet recently prepared by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. It tells how a person of any age may measure the economic value of his or her life. It will be mailed free.

HALEY FISKE, President

Perhaps the easiest way to realize this stupendous figure is to compare it with the total value of the entire material wealth of our country.

The latest available government reports show that everything we own—land, buildings, railroads, mines, raw materials, manufactured products, crops, live stock—everything included—was 321 billions.... Our lives are worth nearly five times as much as our property.

America can well be proud of the additional insurance placed on the valuable lives of her people in 1926. More than 16 billion dollars ($16,000,000,000) was written and revived during the year by about 300 life insurance companies—making the total amount of life insurance in force approximately 80 billion dollars ($80,000,000,000). About one sixth of the grand total is carried by the Metropolitan.

But while the people of this country carry 80 billion dollars of life insurance—or only one-twentieth of the economic value of their lives—they carry more than 160 billions of insurance on property—more than one-half of its value.

You would not insure a $5,000 house for $250—one twentieth of its value. You insure it adequately. But have you insured yourself adequately? Send for the booklet which tells you what you are worth. Study it. Then decide whether or not you carry enough insurance to protect your family.

America is rapidly gaining a better knowledge of the value of its greatest wealth—human lives.

The America of the future will better safeguard its wealth and happiness.

"THE AMERICAN WEEKLY" IS THE MOST WIDELY READ MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD

1/5 of all the people in the United States live in homes where the American Weekly is read regularly

EVERY Sunday The American Weekly goes into 5,000,000 American homes. These homes contain 22,000,000 people. Think it over!

Twenty-two million is an impressive number, no matter how you look at it. Greater than the entire population of Spain, or ancient Rome. More people than there are in seventeen of our largest and most representative states. One-fifth the total population of the entire country!

These 22,000,000 people are of all ages and all conditions. They live all over the United States, from Seattle to Atlanta, from Los Angeles to Boston. But they all come under the immediate influence of The American Weekly.

It takes a great deal of money to keep these 22,000,000 people alive and happy. Whether they are old men, or babes in arms; smart young matrons or dowagers, they are all consumers. Their aggregate expenditures for food, clothing, shelter and entertainment run up into staggering figures.

These expenditures are directly influenced by the advertisements in The American Weekly. For this modern and absorbing magazine is followed by every member of the family that is old enough to read, and the purchases of the younger children are made by their parents. This widespread reader-interest within the family gains for American Weekly advertisers both the trade of the present generation and the patronage of tomorrow's.

And these people have not only the will, but the means, to buy. Their standard of living is high. Most of them live in the trading areas of the larger cities. They know the good things of life, and they insist upon getting them.

This is the market which The American Weekly offers you—one-fifth the total population of the United States—the most prosperous fifth! No other publication will cover it. Yet as an advertising medium The American Weekly is not expensive. Its rates, in comparison with its circulation, are the lowest of all large-scale publications. And it is the only national medium in which the advertiser can take a full newspaper-size page in color.

The American Weekly will establish your product in the richest and most stable of the national markets, with power, economy and dispatch. Write today for complete information to the nearest office (see below) of The American Weekly. A. J. Kobler, President.

Michigan Faces Acid Test in Purdue Clash Tomorrow

Wisconsin and Purdue, second and third respectively in the Big Ten conference basketball race, strengthened their positions during the last week while Michigan, the only undefeated Big Ten team, remained idle. The Wolverines, after almost a month of resting on their laurels, will be forced into the open this week to test their strength against Purdue.

Michigan's big test will come Tuesday at Lafayette. The effect of their long lay-off coupled with the fact that the Wolverines will have to travel to a foreign gym and meet one of the West teams in the conference makes the game a dangerous one for Michigan. Purdue's only defeat of the year came in their first game of the season when they were avowed by Iowa. Since then Coach Ward Lambert's men have been playing good ball, defeating Ohio State twice, Chicago, and Minnesota.

Iowa Provides Upset.
Wisconsin successfully encountered the menace of the supposedly rejuvenated Maroons on Saturday, trimming Norton's men, 31 to 20, and defeating the much talked of Maroon "delayed offense," which knocked Indiana out of the conference reckoning. While the Badgers continued their winning streak, Iowa pulled one of the upsets of the season by setting down Illinois, 26 to 24. The erratic Hawkeyes are hosts to Purdue Saturday in a game which may seriously affect the Boilermakers' record.

Minnesota, after nine straight defeats, almost a conference record in itself, turned Saturday and tasted victory at the hands of the Purple, at Minneapolis, 29 to 24, and will take a two weeks' layoff as a reward, while Northwestern has to contend with Illinois at Urbana on Wednesday and Chicago at Bartlett gym on Saturday.

Illini to Face Purple.
Illinois, having dropped from a tie with Indiana for third place to fifth on account of Saturday's meeting with Iowa, seems due for a breathing spell in their meeting with the ill-fated Purple at Urbana on Wednesday, after which they will be idle for more than a week. Wisconsin, still in second place, goes to Ohio State on Saturday.

HUNT IS SCORING ACE
Adding nineteen points to his total during the week, Bill Hunt of Ohio State increased his lead over his nearest rival for individual scoring honors in the Big Ten basketball race. Capt. Russell Daugherty of Illinois moved from third to second place, four points behind Hunt. Ottomero, Minnesota, held third place by a comfortable margin despite the fact he scored only five points during the week. Leading individual point scorers:

GAMES TODAY.
1:30 Denton vs. Campanelli.
3:30 Denton vs. Loebach.
7:30 Kieckhefer vs. Copulos.
9:30 Reiselt vs. Thurshill.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia and Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago will bring the world's three cushion billiard championship at Reital hall to a close tomorrow night, and that match should decide the championship, though there is still a chance of a two-of-three-way tie. It is possible today's four games may result in either Reiselt or Kieckhefer playing the other for the title.

With six games to play Reiselt and Kieckhefer are tied for the lead with six games won and one lost, for which Augie can thank Gus Copulos for his skillful exhibition in defeating the champion Saturday night. Copulos is in second place with six wins and two lost and there is still the old chance he may get into a win for the title.

Charles McCourt, the Cleveland veteran, and Allen Hall, St. Louis comedian who is rated the most promising of all the younger players in the tournament, have finished their schedule. McCourt has returned to Cleveland, and he is definitely settled in tenth place, but that is the only place definitely settled.

Tiff Denton, the Arkansas Traveler who now calls Kansas City his home, plays twice this afternoon and is likely to pack the house, for while Kieckhefer has shown himself to be the best drawing card in Chicago, Denton's billiards have a lot of followers. In the first match he plays Raimundo Campanelli, the Cuban champion, and in the second match plays Earl Lookabaugh.

Fireworks Promised Tonight.
The night's matches promise the fireworks, with Kieckhefer playing Copulos in the first contest, and Reiselt dueling Thurshill in the afterpiece. Kieckhefer, who has been running over his opponents, may be slowed by Copulos' "billiard brains," while Copulos may find Augie's pace too swift.

It's a take your choice match. Reiselt has been playing better billiards than Thurshill, but the fans haven't forgotten the first seven innings of the tournament in which Arthur counted twenty-three points.

All the averages in the tournament have fallen below the point an inning mark, though both Denton and Kieckhefer are holding close to it. Augie's record is next with 37. The champion is next with 31, and from that they range down to 74 for Campanelli and McCourt, which is far better than average three cushions.

Hall, Bauder and Gallert Tie in Park Trap Shoot
Eric Hall, H. M. Bauder, and A. Gallert shattered 97 targets to tie for first place at the Lincoln park gun trap yesterday in the 100 target event. H. Adams and H. Gallert tied for second place with totals of 96. Joe Donlon and O. H. Hassel broke 94 targets to share third honors. Eric Hall also won the doubles event with 42.

A. A. U. May Bar Wide; Hints Ticket Scandal in N. Y. Games

New York, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—The foreign relations committee of the Amateur Athletic union, having jurisdiction over the competitive appearances here of foreign athletes as well as the foreign appearances of American athletes, is investigating the conditions surrounding Edwin Wide's scheduled appearance in the Knights of Columbus indoor track meet in Madison Square Garden March 17.

Amateur Status Involved.
A question of Wide's amateur status is involved. Whether the Swedish conqueror of Paavo Nurmi and Dr. Otto Peltzer will be permitted to engage in his scheduled mile race against Lloyd Hahn and others as a K. of C. feature is a question yet to be decided.

It became known today that Wide was the central figure at an executive meeting of four members of the foreign relations committee Saturday. The subject under investigation was the allotment of $1,000 tickets for the K. of C. meet to the United Swedish, Charlott, the Finnish-American A. C., and the Swedish-American A. C., and whether Wide was involved directly or indirectly with the sale of these tickets and the distribution of the proceeds.

Result of Geiger Protest.
The investigation is the outgrowth of a recent protest from A. Geiger, a Boston member of the A. A. U. board of governors, over Wide's being permitted to compete here, and reports and rumors which followed the recent Boston A. A. games in Boston and revolved around Wide's failure to compete in the Unicorn meet.

Shea Picked to Fight Taylor Here Feb. 24

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
Eddie Shea, who was selected as the opponent for Bud Taylor of Torre Haute, Ind., in the windup of James Muller's boxing show at the Coliseum, Feb. 24, will box ten rounds and will weigh in at 125 pounds at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on the day of the fight.

Shea was selected to take the place of Tony Consoneri, the New York Italian bantamweight, who is unable to go through with the match because of injuries. According to commission rules, the New York Italian must make his first fight in Illinois for Muller.

First Meeting of Fighters.
Taylor and Shea have never met, although they have both made a name for themselves in the past. Taylor, a boxer, has been eager for such a bout, but their managers never could agree on terms.

Yesterday afternoon Muller called Eddie, boxer manager of Taylor, and Ray Alvis, who looks after the interests of Shea, into his office. After over an hour's wrangling, mainly on the question of weight, articles were signed, but only after Long had signed Alvis he would take Shea's forfeit if Eddie is an ounce over the stipulated weight.

Shea Starts Training Today.
It is a natural bout for Chicago, as both fighters have many admirers. Although Eddie has had a bad cold, Ray Miller, the little Italian has not lost much prestige among his friends, who declare their favorite had an off night when he met Miller. Taylor is also popular with Chicago boxing fans. In order to close the match, Muller guaranteed the fighters a large portion of his receipts. In Shea he believes he has signed a fighter as good as Consoneri, who gave Bushy Graham a beating in the east recently. It will be recalled that Taylor also gave Graham a boxing lesson in Aurora in 1924.

Red Wing, Minn., Feb. 13.—(Special.)—Skating against a strong wind and on a treacherous icy slide, three participants in the Interstate ski tournament here today suffered serious injuries. Alf Mathiesen, Norge club of Chicago, fractured the pelvic bone in class B, while Theodore Rex, Jackson, Minn., was third. John Olson, Eau Claire, Wis., fourth; Carl Ek, Red Wing, fifth.

Bert Wilcock, Ironwood, Mich., won in class B, while Theodore Rex, Jackson, Minn., was second, and Reuben Conrad, St. Paul, third.

SPARTA SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS BRICKIES, 2 TO 1
Although they were on the defensive during most of the game, the Sparta soccer team managed to nose out the Bricklayers, 2 to 1, in a Midwest league game at De Paul field yesterday. A crowd of 3,000 witnessed the game.

Hjullian, the big Swedish goalkeeper of Sparta, played a great game and it was his stellar work that kept the Brickies from a victory.

Sparta only used three shots in the opening chapter, but one of them from Vleck found the net. The Brickies tied the score in the second half when Clem Cuthbert headed through a prettily cross from Hughes III. The Brickies got the winning margin when a shot by Krabec struck one of the Bricklayer defenders and went into the net following a free kick. Lineup:

New York, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—In an overtime hockey game that ended with fast play, the New York Americans defeated the Chicago Blackhawks, 2 to 1, at Madison Square Garden tonight before a crowd of 10,000. Laurie Scott, substitute American forward, scored the winning goal on a rebound of Reale's shot in 6:31 of the first extra period.

The teams battled evenly through the first session, but without a score, but Red Green, who played a sparkling game, put New York one to the good in 7:17 of the second period. With only a little over a minute to go, Hay tied it up for Chicago.

Hawk Attacks Replied.
There was little to choose between the teams early in the opening minutes of the first period, although Red Green and Burch made sparkling plays, missing the net by inches. In a heavy drive on the New York net by Fraser and Irvin, Forbes' head was cut by Red Green's stick and the goal keeper had to go off for repairs.

Jakie came back to the fray after three stitches had been taken. The game then went along at a swift pace and both goal tenders made thrilling saves. Neither side could net the disk and the period ended without a score. Forbes was credited with 17 saves for the first session.

Red Green, who had been doing some salient stick handling, scored the first goal of the game in the second period off a nice play with Burch in 7:17. Burch took the disk down the north side, passed it out to Red, who easily beat Lehman on the shot.

Hay Tied Score.
McVeigh, Irvin, and Hay staged some pretty combinations. Flashing through the New York defense, Forbes made some great saves, but Hay finally took a pass from Irvin and clapped it with a little over a minute to go, tying the score, 2 to 1.

Red Green rounded the crowd again early in the third period with some dazzling runs, but was soon put off for roughing. After skidding through the entire New York team, Dick Irvin had Forbes at his mercy but missed with a wide shot.

Scott brought the overtime period to a close after six minutes and 31 seconds of hectic play when he wangled home Reale's rebound for the American victory.

GOLFER TEES OFF ON 123,000 STROKE CALIFORNIA HIKE

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Accompanied by Happy Kirby, volunteer caddy, Doc Grahame, teed off at the Country club here today with L. A. Angles as his objective.

About 100 persons braved a heavy rain to watch the youth start his avowed undertaking of driving a golf ball from Mobile to California, a task which mathematical calculations indicate would require 123,000 strokes.

Motorists followed Grahame as he left the Country club links and started west on the Three Notch road. The youth's first stroke was a long drive, he contended that many of the remaining 123,199 would have to be chip shots, and estimated the time it would take him to reach Los Angeles at five months to five years.

BASEBALL TITLES COSTLY; BUT THEY SEEM WORTH IT

Otherwise McGraw Would Not Boost Pay Roll.

New York, Feb. 13.—[U. P.]—Since the baseball players started digging both hands into the money bags, major league club owners have differed in their opinions as to the commercial value of a pennant winner.

Owners of those clubs that have staged million dollar series—New York, Washington, Pittsburgh and St. Louis—claim seriously that they would have lost money on a four game series, and that with the receipts from a seven game series they made barely enough to compensate them on a union scale of pay for the time, labor and trouble involved.

This is a bare statement of fact and is not intended as the note of a union leader, to whom up the boys who think that series are arranged to go seven games for the benefit of the impoverished magnates.

Owners Seek Cash.
There is a certain glory in a championship team, but club owners do not seek glory as much as cash, and while there may not be Ford profits in a series, there must be some special assets in the possession of a pennant winner.

Otherwise John McGraw would not be making the desperate gamble in money and flesh to win the 1927 National league pennant for the New York Giants.

The business office insists that no money and only ball players on the hoof were concerned in the deals that brought Rogers Hornsby, Eddie Roush, Burley Grimes, and George Harper from other clubs. But, if this is so, the trades caused the club something in the differences in salary that will have to be paid to the three stars.

The giant pay roll this year cannot be less than $145,000 and may run as high as $200,000, a sum that would stagger the Phillies or the Red Sox.

The estimated salaries of the highly paid players are: Hornsby, $40,000; Roush, $19,000 to $21,000; Grimes, $15,000; Jackson and Lindstrom, $11,000 each; Young, $13,000; Barnes, $10,000; Tyner and Mueller, $8,000.

And Other Expenses.

Then there are the salaries of the other players, pitchers, catchers, utility men and substitutes, coaches, trainers and secretaries, travel and hotel expenses on the road, wear and tear on uniforms, and a flock of other items. McGraw may be prompted by other than commercial motive in gambling as much on a pennant, and he probably is. He is celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary with the Giants this year, and there would be no more fitting celebration for him than that which could be staged after his Giant team had won the world's series.

I. A. C. SEXTET TO MEET C. A. A. IN CHARITY TILT

Rivalry between the Illinois A. C. and the Chicago A. A. will be renewed Feb. 22, when the hockey teams of the two Michigan avenue clubs clash at the Coliseum for the benefit of the Shriner's hospital fund for crippled children. In a recent game the I. A. C. annexed a 2 to 1 decision, but the backers of the C. A. A. sextet believe their team will reverse the decision in the coming battle.

MARTYR TO PAIN FOR 16 YEARS

Finds relief after spending much money in vain

After spending a great deal of money on medicines without results, a woman who had suffered from rheumatism for years got quick relief by a simple home treatment.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for 16 years and I have spent a great deal of money in trying to get something which would ease the pain," she writes. "In Sloan's Liniment I have found instant relief."

Sloan's helps when other remedies fail because Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up the bodily forces to throw off the poisons that are causing the pain.

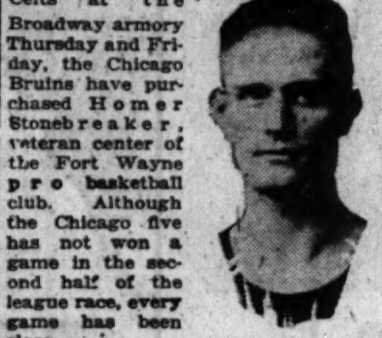

So easy, pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub it in. Just apply gently, and the medicine brings the relief.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents. Dr. Earl S. Sloan, 113 W. 18th St., New York.

Bruins Sign Stonebreaker for Center Job

In an effort to strengthen their battle front for the two piece series with the New York Celts at the

Broadway armory Thursday and Friday, the Chicago Bruins have purchased Homer Stonebreaker, a veteran center of the Fort Wayne pro basketball club. Although the Chicago five has not won a game in the second half of the league race, every game has been close.

After losing Stonebreaker twice here to the Philadelphia Quakers, the Bruins made a swing around the eastern cities and are returning tomorrow.

Stonebreaker is one of the greatest basketball players the west ever has produced. For years his performances have been the acme of accomplishment for the fans of Indiana. He first captured the spotlight as a member of the Wingate, Ind., high school team when he practically singlehanded led his five to the state championship. In 1914 he entered Wabash college and was the outstanding player of the Little Giant's "Wonder Five."

For three years this team—Devot and Clements at forwards, Stonebreaker, center, Bacon and Caldwell, guards—reigned supreme, defeating all opponents including the leading quintets of the conference. Clements is now coach of the Riverside high school team of the Suburban league.

Stonebreaker and Bacon played professional football in 1917 with Pine Village, and where barred from college competition. Since that time Stonebreaker has played with the Fort Wayne Friars, now a member of the American basketball league. In addition he has coached high school teams at Hartford City and Logansport, Ind.

2 EASTERN GAMES ON LAKE FOREST PREP GRID CARD

Will Play Dartmouth, Princeton Frosh.

Ralph Jones, director of athletics and football coach at Lake Forest academy, announced yesterday that this year's grid coast eleven will go east to meet the Dartmouth and Princeton freshman teams. Dartmouth will be met at Hanover Oct. 15 and the Tiger freshmen on the following Saturday.

Three professors will accompany the players and classes will be held en route. Present plans call for the renting of a hotel near Hanover where classes will be held every day during the interval between games.

Last year Jones took his team east and defeated the Yale freshmen, 18 to 0. In 1925 the Princeton freshmen were beaten, 13 to 0. Following the close of the last football season, Jones has received invitations from Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania.

Jones, formerly basketball coach at Illinois, has developed football teams at Lake Forest which have lost only four games in seven years. Lake Forest is compelled to go out of its class for competition and usually plays the Marquette and Notre Dame freshmen eleven each year.

WORLD MARKET SEEMS TO RULE PRICE OF WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The domestic wheat theory, on which some traders have been buying wheat of late, apparently will have to be discarded unless there is a material change in conditions in the cash market in the immediate future.

Cash basis here at the present time is the lowest of the season as compared with May. Mills have been taking hold slowly with the result that both No. 2 red and hard winters are at a discount as compared with the futures.

An analysis of the world's wheat situation suggests that on Feb. 1 leading exporting countries had available about $23,000,000 bu for the needs of importers, without allowing for carryover. Clearances from July 1 to January 31 aggregated 427,000,000 bu, or over $1,000,000 a month.

Exports for the remaining five months of the season are at the same rate it would account for 205,000,000 bu and make total world's shipments for the 1926-27 season 732,000,000 bu, or slightly in excess of the quantity estimated by Brookings, and would permit of a world's carryover of 223,000,000 bu on July 1, 1927, compared with 139,000,000 bu in 1925.

Wheat Needs Smaller.

Despite the increased population in the United States during the last few years the apparent domestic disappearance of wheat has not increased to any great extent. In 1925-26 the actual disappearance was around 633,000,000 bu, while on the basis of the amount of flour retained in this country during the first six months of the crop year the 1926-27 total should not exceed 620,000,000 bu, a figure lower than statisticians have been using in their estimates as to domestic requirements.

During the first six months of the crop year mills ground 215,000,000 bu wheat, or 13,000,000 bu more than last year, and on December 31 had a total stock on hand of 185,897,000 bu, against 118,515,000 in 1925. After consideration is given to the relatively slow flour trade since the turn of the year, the cause of the decline in cash premiums of late is explained.

The wheat market is in a rut at the present time, and drastic developments will probably be necessary to get it out. To some extent this is due to the fact that American prices are well above a world's level at the present time, with sufficient professional buying in evidence on the breaks to rapidly absorb the surplus, with sinking spells as soon as the buying ceases.

The limited effect of the farm relief measures now before congress is seen in the price changes for the week, with values here unchanged to 1/4c lower, the latter on May, which closed $1.41 1/4-1/2, with July, $1.34 1/2-1/4, and September, $1.23 1/2-1/4. For the week Kansas City was 1/4c lower, and Minneapolis 1/4c lower, while nearby futures at Winnipeg lost 1/4c and October was 1/4c higher. Range of prices in Chicago the last week follows:

Corn Has Narrow Range.

Trade in corn has fallen off, prices having a range of only 1/4c in the last week, with the close on Friday at net losses of 1/4c, as compared with the previous week, a disappointing showing considering the material reduction in the arrivals at terminal markets and the relative strength in the cash grain.

May corn closed Friday at $1.01 1/4-1/2, July at $1.01 1/4-1/2, and September at $0.91 1/4-1/2. Range of prices the last week follows:

Foreigners Buy Rye.

Rye is regarded by many traders as in a peculiar position, statistically at least, and has been showing independent strength for some time past, although closing 1/4c lower Friday as compared with the previous week on the nearby months, while September was 1/4c higher. May finished at $1.05 1/4-1/2, July, $1.04 1/4-1/2, and September, $0.95 1/4-1/2.

Liquidation was on in oats the last week with a decline in prices to a new low on the present movement. The slow decrease in the visible supply in the face of small receipts at terminal markets has caused tired longs to let go freely, and the May lost 1/4c on the July in consequence. Seeding of the new crop is under way in Texas and Oklahoma, and is expected to start this week in southern Kansas. For the time being the market promises to be dominated to a large extent by the action of corn. May closed at $0.95 1/4-1/2 on Friday with July 47, and September 45 1/2-1/4. LARD PRICES DECLINE

With a slow foreign and domestic demand for cash lard and receipts here almost double, the shipments during the last week and hogging pressure from packers, prices were on the downgrade and at the last showed 2 1/2c to the under the finish of the previous week. Certain-Test Products.
G. M. F.—Certain-Test Products corporation reports net profits, after all charges, of $2,334,528 for 1926, against $2,100,998 for 1925.

The 1926 profits were equal to $4.39 a share on the first preferred stock, $70.54 a share on the second preferred (after first preferred stock sinking fund) and $5.13 a share on the 207,000 shares of no par common stock.

These figures compare with $4.80 a share on the first preferred, $61.15 on the second preferred and $4.73 on the common in 1925.

Surplus for the year of 1926 after dividends amounted to $611,578.

Total surplus stood at $4,402,829 at the close of 1926 and $1,350,000 was carried as appropriated surplus to be used for the redemption of part of the first preferred stock.

Dividends at the annual rate of $4 per share are being paid on the common stock.

The first preferred is high grade.

MONEY RAISING METHODS CHANGE FOR INDUSTRY

BY HARPER LEECH.

Slowly but surely the capital structure of American industry as a whole is being changed to conform to the period of low profits per unit of output and concentration of the greater part of profits among a few widely held corporations, as industry is integrated and the number of units in productive, as distinguished from distributive enterprises is lessened.

For two years capital flotations have exceeded $7,000,000,000 a year. Such a figure would have caused old time bankers to tremble in their boots, but we are used to that sort of thing and find the man seeking the securities rather than the securities seeking the man in many departments of financing.

Notable is the extent to which refunding operations are gaining on total flotations. Of the total of $7,396,537,525 of all forms of securities floated last year $1,051,355,552 were refunding. Compare the respective figures for 1925—$7,138,023,638 and $902,155,284. As the whole pile of post war flotations matures, this gain of refunding operations relative to the total may be greater. Right now, of course, the incentive is cheaper money and a keen desire to lower fixed charges in view of narrow profit margins, fast turnover and low advance orders. The first month of this year twice as many bonds were called for redemption as in January, 1926. All this may be viewed as a continuation of post war deflation in a highly desirable form.

The money hired at high rates came more from the rich than money borrowed today, and as C. W. Barron has so well said, "The United States has advanced by the expenditure and savings of the masses and by the savings, not the expenditures, of the rich."

In ten years United States Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone and Telegraph, General Electric, Dupont, American Smelting and Refining, and American Car and Foundry retained in surplus over half of their net earnings, or nearly $1,500,000,000. A very large part of that was "vicarious savings" by the rich. Other corporations by the score have followed policies of a similar nature. The independence of the automotive industry on the financial side is commonplace.

The operations of the surpluses certainly seem to have assisted many of the great corporate factors of the industrial system into a new sort of financial independence. It is worth noting that the increase in the public debt for such works as highways and bridges created indirectly a large part of the corporate sales out of which the great surpluses, refundings and general independence of "finance capital" grew.

Foreigners Buy Rye.

Rye is regarded by many traders as in a peculiar position, statistically at least, and has been showing independent strength for some time past, although closing 1/4c lower Friday as compared with the previous week on the nearby months, while September was 1/4c higher. May finished at $1.05 1/4-1/2, July, $1.04 1/4-1/2, and September, $0.95 1/4-1/2.

Liquidation was on in oats the last week with a decline in prices to a new low on the present movement. The slow decrease in the visible supply in the face of small receipts at terminal markets has caused tired longs to let go freely, and the May lost 1/4c on the July in consequence. Seeding of the new crop is under way in Texas and Oklahoma, and is expected to start this week in southern Kansas. For the time being the market promises to be dominated to a large extent by the action of corn. May closed at $0.95 1/4-1/2 on Friday with July 47, and September 45 1/2-1/4. It was in this humble cottage on the Southwest side that Edward R. Litsinger was born.

Later on he paid his way through school by playing semi-pro baseball.

For ten years he attended night school regularly after his daily work.

His industry was rewarded when he passed the state examination and was admitted to the bar.

Today he is prominent in the profession of law, in business, banking and public life.

A Working Mayor for Chicago! EDWARD R. LITSINGER

(Chairman of the Board of Review of Cook County)

You may ask: Who is Edward R. Litsinger? What kind of a man is he? What has he done by which you can judge what he will do and what he is competent to do? You have a right to know.

The story of Edward R. Litsinger's life is an inspiration to every ambitious boy and to the parents of every such boy. Humble and modest in its beginning, it proves again that honesty, combined with pluck and energy, never fails to win.

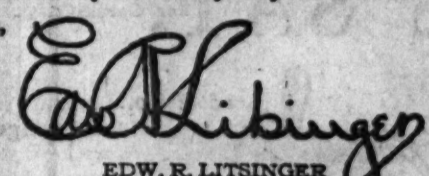

The son of a workingman, Edward R. Litsinger is today as hard a worker as any man who makes his home in this great city. When he was six years old his father died, and shortly afterward he was forced to go to work to help his mother. Hard work has been a habit with him ever since. What story of success could be more thrilling than the chapters of his life pictured above?

And what has he accomplished? Today at 52, he is president of four prosperous business concerns, vice president and director of the Southwest Trust and Savings Bank and the West Side National Bank, and the head of an important law firm; he was elected member of the Cook County Board of Review in 1916, re-elected in 1922, and is now its Chairman.

To the Voters of Chicago:

If my public record and my personal efforts to succeed in life have your approval, may I ask you to vote for me at the coming primary, and also to recommend my candidacy to your friends.

Very sincerely yours,

 EDW. R. LITSINGER

(Copyright, 1927, by The New York Times.)

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—In two respects last week's occurrence in the market for the so-called smaller merger railway shares were remarkable—because of the suddenness with which a totally unexpected situation (containing Wall Street and because no parallel situation had arisen in a quarter of a century.

The first of these two anomalies is explainable only through the closeness with which the secret of the "buying into" of the market was kept. The second anomaly is explainable only through the closeness with which the secret of the "buying into" of the market was kept. The second anomaly is explainable only through the closeness with which the secret of the "buying into" of the market was kept.

Large scale competitive purchases by railway managements of shares in other railways which would be useful to them as friends and dangerous as enemies, commonly presupposes two circumstances in the existing situation: a favorable outlook for the railway industry, which should warrant the use of corporate funds to acquire such shares, and large facilities of credit, such as would enable the purchasing companies to raise the large requisite loans.

Then Conditions Changed. It is entirely safe to say that no parallel situation, in these two regards, has arisen at any time during the intervening period. Railway earnings were hard hit by the trade depression after the panic of 1917; but by the close restriction of rates by the commerce commission and the uncertain industrial position of the immediate prewar years; next by the war, and the government's extravagant operation of the railways. Finally came the violent shrinkage of traffic after 1920, with the subsequent slow recovery. Superabundant facilities of credit never existed between 1903 and the ending of the war. Such a condition did indeed develop with great rapidity after the nationwide liquidation of 1921, but the credit fund was very slow in directing itself toward the railway industry.

Rise of Profitable. It needed the uninterrupted rise of railway profits during 1925 and 1926 to create a situation in which the recent occurrences would be possible.

Such movements on the stock exchange as those of last week, or of 1917 or 26 years ago always have a bearing, not only on conditions of the moment, but on future developments. We know what the sequel was in the older period. The attempt to tie up control of the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy in a huge holding company was balked by the government under the anti-trust law, in the famous Northern Securities case. But railway property, continuing to grow, in 1906, total gross earnings were $727,000,000 greater even than in 1900 and net income larger by $357,000,000.

Time of Financial Crisis. The process of using railway surpluses and railway credits to buy stock of other railways continued; in the later year, the day of E. H. Harriman. Union Pacific alone spent $125,000,000 for such purposes. But the utter extravagance with which these undertakings and the industrial promotions were pursued ended by creating in 1906 an extreme tension of credit, and in 1907 brought about so formidable a credit crisis as to terminate the period of prosperity.

Some of the present surrounding circumstances resemble those which preceded the chapter of events just enumerated; in other respects the position is curiously different. Railway managements no longer possess the automatic power over their companies' funds and credit facilities which they possessed before 1906; the extension of the commerce commission's powers, in that year and the transportation act of 1920 have left them subject to close governmental restriction. That supervision now so far as to require the commerce commission's endorsement both of a new security issue and of the purpose for which the money was raised. It is not conceivable that the commission, had it possessed "the power" in 1901 and 1906, would have authorized the borrowing of money for the competitive buying into Northern Pacific or the subsequent sale by Union Pacific of the funds released by sale of its Northern Pacific holdings in the market.

Some Interesting History. The older precedent of continuous expansion of railway earnings in the "amalgamation period" is interesting because the real reason for that uninterrupted increase was the country's continuing prosperity, based largely as it is today, on active pursuit of trade and the overflowing fund of American capital. Whether the analogy of 25 years ago will be followed eventually in the matter of money stringency (sixty days' loans on Wall Street went to $1 and 10 per cent in the last months of 1906 and all money to 125 per cent at the end of 1907) is another question.

OILS TAKE LEAD IN LONDON MART IN HEAVY TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
[Copyright, 1927, by The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Oil blazed in the spotlight on the stock exchange this week and intense activity prevailed, with an enormous turnover. No special reason was offered for the violent outburst, in which the public is now taking a hand. The buying demand was so persistent that in a few days which would have taken months to unload under normal trading conditions. Such a state of affairs is bound to lead to over-speculation, and warning notes already have been issued.

Prices everywhere scored material advances, with Anglo-Persians to 6, Burmah to 7 1/2, Shells to 5 1/2, and Royal Dutch to 3 1/2.

Occupying second in place of interest was home rails, the dividend announcements confirming the most pessimistic forecasts, with a consequent depression in the market. The worst is now known of the three great groups; the London, Midland and Scottish common stock pays 1 per cent against 5 per cent last year; Great Western 5 per cent against 7 per cent, and Southern 1 1/2 against 7 1/2. French currency loans were comparatively quiet, although sentiment is improving. The firmness of European sterling loans was still noteworthy, the Belgian seven crossing to 105 and German sevens to 107.

With the Super-Six principle freed to the limit, Hudson-Essex sales also soar to new high peaks. The astounding record made here in sales at the Chicago Automobile Show is merely a typical part of the eager demand which has swept the country at a stroke.

Not only here but at every Auto Show—New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, and other shows everywhere—the Hudson-Essex exhibit has been the interest center of such crowds that no one could possibly view these cars to advantage.

Now See the "Hudson-Essex Show" by Itself

Come and see the cars which have captured public imagination, as no others ever shown, and examine them under conditions that will permit you to realize their beauty, experience their restful roomy comfort, and understand the new meaning which the released Super-Six principle gives to performance.

There are six new and beautiful Hudsons and four Essex bodies on the two new Super-Six chassis. They are entirely new in appearance and performance. And although production for February is the greatest in history, demand is far in excess, and the present acute shortage will probably be felt for months. So to get the Hudson or Essex of your choice, come examine them, and place your order today.

Fashion's Preferred Curly Locks Since World Was Young

Have you ever wondered why the small child with straight hair, though her features might be perfect and her eyes luminous was never referred to as beautiful, while the curly little golden locks who might have owned a stubbed nose won the prize compliments? I speak in the past tense, having suffered the ignominy of being expected to be a-m-a-r-t (spelled out in company to make up for the straight hair). A thousand other witnesses will bear me testimony that erudition was your only hope were you born without kink or curl.

Perhaps this state of affairs is as true today, with advanced methods of child training, and with the good looking straight-haired coiffures the current mode permits adults.

This taste for curls with your beauty is as true as old as man, it seems. Joseph de Silve, writing in a trade publication, reports that when barbarians would be caught out with long, straight hair. The more civilized people became the more the hair took to curls and waves—by fair means and artificial. In the Roman era only the very poor wore straight hair. No Roman patricians, male or female, would have dared to appear in public minus ringlets.

Going further back into history, it has been discovered that Egyptian women had a permanent waving style of their own which they practiced assiduously. They curled their hair with a pencil shaped stick, put mud around it and let the mud dry in the sun. This, according to Mr. de Silve, is the first known attempt at permanent waving and dates back to 2,000 B. C.

The gods and goddesses of mythology are presented to us with curled or wavy hair. And the poets, since Greek days, have been unanimous in their eulogies to the locks that curl.

The heads of angels and Madonnas are enough to discourage any straight haired child from hope of entering the Kingdom of Heaven, although, for me, I never thought of that as a youngster.

Sculptured heads of lovely females are noted for the clever undulations around the scalp. So, when you see up the tributes to curls, you really see why the permanent and marcel waving business today is one of the nation's leading industries.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

ETHEL H.: CONTINUED USE of hair oil is injurious as it makes the hair dry and brittle, and gives it a strawlike appearance. I cannot comment on the department rules to do so. It will take from a year to eighteen months for the hair to return to its natural condition. It should be washed frequently.

Short Jackets Are Smarter than Ever

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Ba, ba, Black Sheep is working overtime nowadays. For when you count in sports coats, sports frocks, separate skirts, and then add these woolly novelty jackets for resort wear, it makes more than "three bags full" for the mistress alone.

Novelty jackets of wool are just the latest coming among the ever-increasing group of little separate coats which are assuming so much importance in our midst. The common factor among them all is a penchant for being collarless. This even applies to jackets. The most interesting part of the outfit is the sleeveless coat of white wool jersey edged and embroidered in brightly colored wool.

Such elaboration of an otherwise plain sports coat is unusual, but appears in several resort groups. Application of brilliant embroidery on white, however, is continually stressed in many ensembles and composed of pleats. The only takes her to the beach, the white jumper may be used for the shade of the skirt on the cardigan jacket.

Above you find a more attractive sample of this decorative sports wrap. It really contains the second element in a two piece sports ensemble. The frock is fashioned of white crepe with a perfectly plain upper section and a skirt of allover pleats. The most interesting part of the outfit is the sleeveless coat of white wool jersey edged and embroidered in brightly colored wool.

As an Entertainer

This Young Midas Rates Zero Minus

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My girl friend has been keeping company with a young man now for the last three years—seeing him twice a week. Last Christmas he came to her house without even giving her a present. He only takes her to the movies, never treats her to dinner or anything else. He has a machine and when they cannot get into the show he drives around and then takes her home."

"You, Miss Blake, in your articles, seem to think all the girls are gold diggers. Is my friend one? Just what do you think of a man like that? The young woman is attractive and could have a number of young men to take her out and show her a good time. Would you advise her to continue going with him, or to forget him?"

"Brown Eyes."

It is only some of the girls—not all—that are gold diggers. Brown Eyes. Let me correct your impression. You must not think that I think that, for nothing could be further from the truth.

But about your girl friend—if I'd been keeping company with a young man for three years and he came around on Christmas day empty handed, I'm sure I'd have asked him if he hadn't forgotten something. That would be an oversight thoroughly unpardonable. We all manage, somehow, to scrape up the money to buy for those we want to remember, so lack of funds would not be an excuse. Three years of being around with one particular gentleman would entitle a girl to a Christmas gift—but to a mighty nice one.

When I advise consideration of a man's pocketbook, I do not mean to encourage penuriousness. I do not mean letting him off from the ordinary expenditures of a smooth running courtship. When you run into one of those evening absorbers who feel the thrill of generosity just spending hours, the quicker you shoo him off the premises, the better for the furniture and for a girl's own future prospects. Of the two evils—the man who spends more than he ought to and the one who spends a nickel with a shrieking pain—choose the former, every time. Stinginess is too terrible for anyone to add it on an already well stocked cellar of difficulties over which the average feet must tread.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Wants Other Friends.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a fellow who wants me to keep steady company with him. I am 17 and I would like to go out with other young men and make more friends. What would you advise?"

"PUZZLED." Explain your feeling to him just as you have done to me, Puzzled. Make him understand you want his friendship, but not to the exclusion of all others.

But about your girl friend—if I'd been keeping company with a young man for three years and he came around on Christmas day empty handed, I'm sure I'd have asked him if he hadn't forgotten something. That would be an oversight thoroughly unpardonable. We all manage, somehow, to scrape up the money to buy for those we want to remember, so lack of funds would not be an excuse. Caught.

It was at a dance one evening. I was dancing with a young man, and in the course of the conversation he told me he could dance the tango. As he was an unusually good dancer, I should not have doubted his word. But, thinking he was just trying to impress me, and not to be outdone, I also boasted I could tango.

To my surprise and chagrin, he began to dance these steps, and after the first two or three, which were all I knew, I had to admit my falsehood.
